Volentera Privacy and Data Use Notice

Effective Date: October 25, 2026
Platform: Volentera
Platform Operator: Adarsh Shankarling
Contact: adarsh.shankarling1@gmail.com

1. Introduction

Volentera is a web-based volunteer training platform designed to make hospital volunteer onboarding more accessible, personalized, and effective.

This Privacy and Data Use Notice explains what information Volentera collects, how that information is used, who may access it, and how users can ask questions about their information.

Volentera was independently developed in collaboration with the volunteer program at St. Anthony North Hospital. It is not an official CommonSpirit Health website.

2. Information We Collect

When volunteers use Volentera, the platform may collect the following information.

Account Information

- Name
- Email address
- Password, stored in hashed form rather than as readable text
- Account identification and authentication information

Training Information

- Pre-quiz and post-quiz responses
- Quiz scores and assessment results
- Assigned learning modules
- Training progress and completion status
- Areas identified for additional learning
- Quiz attempts and related training activity

Technical Information

To operate and protect the platform, Volentera may process technical information such as IP addresses, login activity, session information, request timestamps, and security or error logs.

3. How We Use Information

Volentera uses collected information to:

- Create and manage volunteer accounts.
- Authenticate users and protect account access.
- Deliver personalized volunteer training.
- Identify areas where volunteers may need additional instruction.
- Track quiz results and training progress.
- Allow authorized administrators to monitor training completion.
- Maintain, troubleshoot, and secure the platform.
- Respond to account-related questions and password-reset requests.

Volunteer information is collected for the operation and administration of the training platform.

4. Who Can Access Information

Individual volunteer account information and training results are accessible only to authorized individuals who require access to administer or maintain the platform.

These individuals currently include:

- The volunteer coordinator responsible for overseeing training.
- The platform operator, Adarsh Shankarling.

Volunteers can access their own training information through their accounts.

Volentera does not make individual volunteer records publicly accessible.

5. Third-Party Services

Volentera uses third-party services to operate its website and supporting functions.

These include:

Amazon Web Services (AWS): Provides infrastructure used to host the application and store its data.

Google Gmail: Supports account-related email functionality, including password-reset communications.

These services may process limited information necessary to provide their respective functions.

Volentera does not sell volunteer personal information.

6. Training Statistics and Platform Evaluation

Volentera may use training information internally to evaluate whether volunteers understand the material and complete required learning modules.

Any future use of aggregated or de-identified training statistics for broader platform evaluation, presentations, or demonstrations will be considered separately and reviewed for appropriate privacy protections.

Individual volunteers' names, email addresses, and identifiable training records will not be published as part of such demonstrations without appropriate authorization.

7. Cookies, Sessions, and Browser Storage

Volentera may use cookies, session information, or browser storage to support authentication, maintain login sessions, and provide essential website functionality.

These technologies are intended to support the operation and security of the platform.

Volentera does not use volunteer information for targeted advertising.

8. Information Security

Volentera uses technical and administrative safeguards intended to protect volunteer information against unauthorized access, disclosure, or alteration.

These safeguards include password hashing, authenticated access controls, restricted administrative access, and encrypted connections to the website.

No internet-based system can guarantee absolute security.

Users should protect their login credentials and avoid sharing their passwords with others.

9. Data Retention

Volentera retains account and training information for as long as reasonably necessary to provide the training service, administer volunteer training, and meet applicable recordkeeping obligations.

Information may also remain temporarily in backups or security records.

Retention and deletion practices may be updated to reflect requirements established by the participating hospital or applicable law.

10. Account Deletion and Privacy Requests

Volunteers may contact the platform operator to request information about their account or ask for account deletion.

Requests can be sent to:

adarsh.shankarling1@gmail.com

Certain training records may need to be retained when required by the participating hospital or applicable law.

Volunteers may also contact their volunteer coordinator regarding training requirements or alternatives.

11. Volunteers Under 18

Volentera may be used by hospital volunteers who are under 18.

The platform collects information necessary to create accounts and administer volunteer training.

Volentera is not intended for children under 13.

Any additional consent or authorization requirements applicable to younger volunteers will be addressed in coordination with the participating hospital.

12. Patient Information

Volentera is intended for volunteer education and does not require volunteers to submit patient medical records or other patient-identifying information.

Users should not enter patient names, medical information, or other confidential hospital information into the platform.

13. Privacy Notice Acknowledgment

Users may be asked to review and acknowledge this notice before continuing to use Volentera.

Acknowledgment confirms that the user has been presented with the notice. It does not waive any legal rights.

Users who do not wish to acknowledge the notice may contact their volunteer coordinator to discuss their concerns and available options.

14. Changes to This Notice

Volentera may update this notice to reflect changes in platform functionality, information-handling practices, legal requirements, or hospital policies.

When material changes occur, users will be notified as appropriate and may be asked to review the updated notice.

The effective date at the beginning of this document will identify the current version.

15. Contact Information

For questions about this Privacy and Data Use Notice, account information, or privacy-related requests, contact:

Adarsh Shankarling
Volentera Platform Operator
Email: adarsh.shankarling1@gmail.com